

THE NEW AGENDA

HOW DO FINANCIALLY CHALLENGED GOVERNMENTS DELIVER POLICIES FOR REFORM AND THE FUTURE?

- Professor Ian Harper, Director, Access Economics
- Dan Hill, Head of Foresight & Innovation, Arup
- Larissa Brown, Director, Centre for Sustainability Leadership
- Narelle Hooper, Editor, BOSS Magazine

Business and society need a government policy that delivers change and reform for the future. Tough financial times and short political cycles delivers expedient short term policy. How do we do better? AmCham with Arup and Access Economics is bringing together a unique group of minds to talk about the New Agenda for Australia.

Dan Hill, Head of Foresight & Innovation for Arup in Australasia will kick off the debate, exploring how we might design, value and learn from our cities and built environment, and how design itself must on the agenda for Australia, perhaps for the first time. Larissa Brown, the 2008 Australian Young Environmentalist of the Year and Executive Director of the Centre for Sustainability Leadership, will then argue why we must take urgent action to create a systemic change towards a sustainable world. Narelle Hooper, Editor of BOSS will be the moderator of our panel discussion to follow.

Our expert panel includes: Professor Ian Harper, Director of Access Economics and one of Australia's best known economists; John Gardiner, former Managing Director of ConnectEast and Prashanth Shanmugan, a geopolitical strategist, writer and a United Nations Ambassador for the Global Atlas of Human Rights.

Robert Care, CEO of Arup Australasia, will move a vote of thanks to our speakers and panellists to conclude the event. Please join us for what will be a stimulating and topical debate on the future direction of Australia.
